This is the main board on The Outhouse, where Outhousers talk about everything. No topics are off limits, and it doesn't have to be about comics. All the topics from the other boards also show up in The Asylum, so you never have to leave! I hope that Tom and Max Jones didn't get lost in the woods. It's pretty hard to survive the Alaskan winter without hypothermia. Although, that's my only one, and I'm not actually rereading, so I may have missed others if there were any. I'm pretty sure I read Stardust and of course Diamond in this one... The Outsiders could be in the can at this point, too. Kinda' wish I'd made the kids' camp a theme camp though, just to get a better feel for who else we're missing. I really like the idea of a giant family adventure. We need a giant family adventure with just a bit of magic.

Q: How to decrease the loop count in this example I have the following statements which check the status of a directory, if it is changed it needs to restart all the files in the directory.

$dir = get-date
$dirPath = get-location
$getFiles = Get-ChildItem $dirPath
$files = $getFiles.Name
foreach ($file in $files) {
    if ($file.LastWriteTime -lt (get-date).Date) {
        Restart-Service -Name FileServer -Force
    }
}

I tried using the following code but not satisfied:

```
$getFiles = Get-ChildItem $dirPath
$files = $getFiles.Name
$filesArr = $getFiles.Name | ForEach-Object{$_}
foreach ($file in $filesArr) {
    if ($file.LastWriteTime -lt (get-date).Date) {
        Restart-Service -Name FileServer -Force
    }

It is giving me an error: Unable to index into an object of type System.String. I am looking to display a list of files that have been changed.

Aberrant expression of FOXP3 and CXCL12 and their correlation with tumour grade in cervical cancers. Using immunohistochemistry, we investigated the expression of FOXP3, CXCL12 and Ki-67 in cervical intraepithelial neoplasia (CIN) and cervical cancer tissues. The numbers of FOXP3 and CXCL12 positive cells in CIN3, CIN3+ and cervical cancer tissues were significantly higher than in CIN2, while the number of Ki-67 positive cells showed the inverse trend. The numbers of FOXP3 and CXCL12 positive cells increased in cervical cancer tissues in accordance with the degree of tumour differentiation and lymph node metastasis. The numbers of FOXP3 and CXCL12 positive cells were higher in the cervical cancer tissue than in the CIN3 and CIN3+ tissue. FOXP3 and CXCL12 positive cells were also detected in the cervical cancer cells. When divided by tumour grade, the numbers of positive cells in the CIN3 and CIN3+ tissues showed no significant difference. However, the positive cell numbers in the cervical cancer tissue increased proportionally with the tumour grade. The numbers of positive cells in both CXCL12 and FOXP3 were negatively correlated with the degree of tumour differentiation and tumour size. The positive cell numbers of FOXP3 and Ki-67 were also negatively correlated. The numbers of FOXP3 and CXCL12 positive cells were positively correlated with the numbers of Ki-67 positive cells. The expression level of FOXP3 and CXCL12 in cervical cancers correlates with cervical cancer progression. FOXP3 and CXCL12 may have prognostic value in cervical cancer.

Organic carbon, nitrogen, and phosphorus dynamics in a constructed wetland treating high strength wastewater. The objective of this study was to investigate nutrient dynamics, including carbon, nitrogen, and phosphorus, in the treatment of high strength wastewater by a constructed wetland (CW). The CW was a hybrid constructed wetland with three compartments and consisted of filter media, media with plants, and media without plants. Sampling showed that the carbon and phosphorus enrichment factors (EF) were 2.6 and 5.7, respectively. The cumulative contribution rate of organic carbon to the total carbon was approximately 75%. The EF of nitrogen was 0.18, indicating that nitrogen was removed efficiently. The nitrogen mass balance was 85.9%, which was similar to the observed

Windows Mac OS X Linux Adobe Reader What's new in this version: • Improvements to the interpolation algorithm for a smoother, less-jumpy rendering. • In OGG output, the format now supports arbitrary frame timings and/or discontinuous playback. • A new option, relative clipping range, allows you to specify a minimum and maximum clipping range and have the renderer select the closest available clipping range (instead of the last frame's range). • A new option, true colors, when set
