HLA and clinical manifestations in children with hemophagocytic lymphohistiocytosis. Hemophagocytic lymphohistiocytosis (HLH) presents with overwhelming proliferation of activated, autoreactive T cells that are believed to be responsible for the high incidence of central nervous system disease and hepatitis. Genetically, this disorder is mediated by dysfunction of cytotoxic T lymphocytes. We assessed the relationship between HLA type and clinical outcomes in a group of children with HLH. Forty-four children referred to our center between 1985 and 1996 were studied. Eleven of these children had documented Epstein-Barr virus (EBV) infection and/or hemophagocytic syndrome.

HLA-DR and DQ antigens were determined by means of the microlymphocytotoxicity technique. All 11 children with EBV infection had HLA-DR3 (P Why is it that the most powerful of National Park people, like myself, (the National Park Service Director) are always viewed as second best, while the weakest National Park bureaucrat (the National Park Ranger) is viewed as the best? That is what I had to figure out yesterday in a meeting with the Inspector General. The Inspector General advised all of us to downplay our importance and let folks like him do the heavy lifting. The last thing I wanted to be advised by the Inspector General was to lower my expectations of being a key player in the budget process. I am in the National Park Service Director's pocket so that he can tell the Congress what is possible with the National Park System, and then what we should do. In all reality, it is the National Park Service Director that sets the bar for what we can expect to get from Congress. That is what we really are, and should be viewed as. The Inspector General's advice was very

What's New in the?

This invention relates to a vacuum-switching control system for color cathode-ray tubes and more particularly to such a system in which there is applied a positive feedback action for controlling the switching operation of a cathode ray tube. A conventional color television receiver is generally designed to control the generation of a switching pulse signal in response to the output of an oscillator circuit which receives a reference oscillator signal from a power source. The output of the oscillator circuit is modulated in accordance with the input video signal so as to provide the reference oscillator signal. The switching signal which is indicative of the switching of a color television receiver is derived from the output of the oscillator circuit by using a negative feedback action for driving a color cathode ray tube to switch the tube between each selected color and the associated flyback transformer which is energized by the current drawn by the cathode ray tube for an effective oscillation signal. As the reference oscillator signal is derived from the output of the oscillator circuit and therefore is derived from an oscillating signal which changes in accordance with the input video signal, the negative feedback action which is provided to drive a color cathode ray tube by the reference oscillator signal fails to provide a positive feedback action, which is to seek a stable, stable state. For that reason, a considerable amount of jitter will appear in the switching pulse signal at the output of the oscillator circuit.She is a proud graduate of Tuckerman's Cove and Lyman School and spent a year studying abroad in Ljubljana, Slovenia.
