Softer, the site uses Google Analytics, the specification of which is as follows: This tracking information includes information about the visitor's domain name, the referring website, the type of browser being used, the type of device and operating system, and the time and date of the visit. Google also collects information about the navigation pattern within each session. All of this data is sent to Google in real time, and then processed anonymously. In particular, data about the type of computer and its various settings are stored in the so-called user profile. According to Google, the information collected is not shared outside the company, and is held for a short time. Under this circumstance, the owner of the data can be reached if required. Google Analytics uses Javascript and HTML 5. As a result, the fact that it is impossible to block cookies in Firefox makes it impossible to control tracking. It is therefore not possible to completely eliminate the tracking of users. Отъзны But on the other hand this is a very useful and innovative program that can be very helpful for most of us. Because, if we are not by nature a good manager of our files and files, it will be very difficult to keep them safe and achieve great results in this area. As for us, we've been using this service for some time now, and we're happy to recommend it. In our opinion, this is the best tool for file management, which is used by many people, and that is constantly improving its service.
