Welcome to the ultimate game-within-a-game, rendered in beautiful virtual reality! Set in the iconic arcade scene of 1989, this game is one of an exclusive collection of award-winning indie titles from the developers behind Worlds A-Rise. In the swanky world of Pixel Ripped, you play as the sole protagonist in an open world in which the scene is a living, breathing, virtual reality experience. The scene is not a display, but rather an endless canvas for you to paint on using various tools. You can create and combine shapes, resizes and colours to create a masterpiece! There are endless possibilities to create new and exciting experiences. Available tools include paint, a brush, a palette, colour meter, an airbrush, brushes, a magic wand, a palette knife, a palette knife, torch, a highlighter, a text box, a pen, a pencil, a steel-sharpened pencil, a digital mixer, you'll find that there is a tool for everything. When you're done, you can share your masterpiece with other people via the in-game social media features, visit your favourite games' developers for creation tips, or even post to the Steam Curator to be voted on by other users. Pixel Ripped 1989 feels a little like Tetris meets The Sims in the best way possible. However, it's important to note that the structure of the game differs greatly from other VR titles. Take Tetris for example - you'd need to beat the entire game in under 10 minutes - Pixel Ripped 1989 doesn't allow you this luxury. Instead, the scene builds up to you at your own pace. The developer describes the game as a 'game-within-a-game-within-a-game' and it certainly comes across that way. The developers warn you to 'Prepare to be engulfed in the Pixel Ripped experience!' when you start. There's no real 'game' here, just loads of potential fun and adventure. Be sure to check out the demo - it only lasts one minute but it's immersive, inspiring and really shows you what to expect as you play the final game. Pixel Ripped 1989 is rated T for Teen and available from the Oculus Store for $14.99 for Oculus Quest and Oculus Go, Epic Games Store for Oculus Rift, HTC Vive and Valve Index, PlayStation Store for PlayStation VR, and Xbox One Store for Xbox One X. About Worlds A-R

Articles The Thule Society and the Reichsbank, 1930-1941 by Michael Moynihan Excerpt from Technology and Conquest Whether or not the Thule Society was as catastrophically wrong about Hitler's intentions as many Historians and modern Authors - and experts on contemporary Japanese history - have concluded... has yet to be resolved. Nevertheless, one thing that is possible and which has been demonstrated over and over again in the last 60 years is that the German Nazis were well versed in both the Ahnenerbe's expeditions and the occult societies associated with the Thule, and were influenced by both organisations. In fact, so deeply did the Nazis occupy themselves with the occult "forces" of the past, that it has been suggested by some authors that... The Thule Society had placed all sorts of details in the hands of Hitler and Goebbels, and received great pleasure in the reports of their successful exploits. A newspaper told the story of a soberly dressed Neopagan woman who had obtained official permission to place flowers before a shrine and to remain there for fifteen minutes [in order] to induce a trance. [She] was informed that such a trance would bring the wished-for dream of Hitler, who was ill in Berchtesgaden, who had not slept for some time, and who urgently needed divine messages. Such messages were urgently needed because he had a visit to make to Hitler on his honeymoon [in] Berchtesgaden [on May 5, 1934]. In fact it was a propaganda lie, and Hitler was home and asleep. [1] With the consolidation of dictatorial power in Germany, however, the Thule Society shifted its efforts into a campaign of organizing the most secret, powerful and powerful-leaking Satanic factions of Nazism. Indeed, once Hitler was in power, the Centre of Occultism's idea of the need for clandestine networks of Yeshuite knighthood was reinforced. For example, a letter written by Alfred Rosenberg on July 18, 1942 to Franz Six and the mysterious "White Magician," reveals that the Thule Society was having great difficulty obtaining its occult necessities to continue its efforts. Indeed it complained that the White Magician was outside the Nazi system of political propaganda and that, with an important military conference to be held that week, it was unable to obtain the necessary official approval for the war effort's occult plans. Rosenberg begged a favour from Six. "
