A co-founder of MySpace is again at the center of a lawsuit after taking the plunge into crowdfunding. Case Bryant is suing Randall Winkler, owner of the Winkler Group, for the moon — 24,740,054.93 of them to be exact. If Bryant is right, that's a little more than $37 million. Case Bryant allegedly met Randall Winkler back in 2002 when Winkler was trying to build his media empire. Bryant is a co-founder of MySpace and co-owns MyspaceCorporation.com, which Winkler may have used to his own personal advantage. Winkler and Bryant were close friends and BusinessWeek says that Winkler helped Bryant with the MySpace situation. Bryant also helped Winkler get started with his media empire. By 2005, Winkler was worth hundreds of millions and so, Bryant and Winkler joined forces and founded the Winkler Group. Bryant claims that Winkler began stealing from the company. Winkler allegedly started by taking $2.6 million dollars for himself. Between 2008 and 2013, the Winkler Group allegedly managed to steal over $4.8 million. Bryant says that he tried to stop this. Not only that, but he also says he asked Winkler to voluntarily leave the company but Winkler refused. He was kicked out but kept working on the company's projects. Bryant has now come back with the help of a lawyer, George Glendon. Glendon says that Winkler stole the money by using the company's financial statement. He says that the amount was $37.3 million. The Winkler Group set up the social network Nirvana in 2004 and Death2Me in 2007. The Winkler Group has been accused of stealing money by its employees, but Bryant is the first employee to raise this issue. The Winkler Group claimed that they were developing the Facebook is equal to iCloud situation. They didn't mention the Winkler Group stealing money, but they did mention that it was damaging to their image. The Winkler Group posted a statement on the Crunch Base Blog, saying that Bryant claims he's "fully vested and owes nothing." He's asking for money back and if Winkler tries to use this as a defense, he'll come after his reputation and credibility. 0cc13bf012
