It is recommended to pay at least 20 per cent of the purchase price upfront – or rent out part of your home and not put any money down on a deposit. So when you decide to buy, it is worth considering how you can get the best deal to make the purchase as affordable as possible. Trade-ups Many people opt for a trade-in home for a deposit. This can be a good option because there are some benefits to this. If your trade-in home is a good quality and priced well, you can expect to get a good return on your investment. You get a better home because you get to start with a deposit. If you pay a higher price, you will be selling a home that is in a better condition than the one you buy. Your existing property will already be worth more because of the upgrades and improvements you have made. For example, at auction prices, your home will be worth more than a new home with a contract in hand because you've made some improvements. Buying depreciating assets It is a good idea to buy lower

The study presented here examines the ability of normal human serum (NHS) to inhibit the cytotoxicity of various effector cells against K562 human leukemia cells. Studies of the susceptibility of mononuclear and separated B cells and T cells to inhibition of cytotoxicity showed that neither of these populations was inhibited under the conditions of the assay. In contrast, macrophages were inhibited on a per cell basis. Both blocking IgG (IgG1 and IgG3) and unfractionated IgG were inhibitory, with the IgG1 being more effective. In addition, heat treatment of serum at 56 degrees C, to destroy IgG and IgM, had no effect. Separated B cells were inhibited by a pool of NHS on the basis of leukocytes (P less than 0.002) whereas mononuclear cells and T cells were not (P greater than 0.2 and P greater than 0.6, respectively). The cytotoxic activity of the autologous effectors was inhibited by NHS. However, the natural cytotoxicity against the allogeneic targets was unaffected by the serum factors.
