DGI OM-70. Konad Imaging: print MISERABLES. Konad Imaging: print BABY ON THE BED. Konad Imaging: print .Q: How do I resolve this git merge conflict? I have made the following three commits, a, b and c : After one more commit, I need to combine b and c into one commit. Question is, how do I resolve merge conflict that is showing up, here? Thanks. A: There are generally three stages to a merge Find out the merge base—i.e. the commit that is common to both branches. This might be the tip of one branch (to be merged onto the other), the most recent commit on the common branch, the previous tip (say, with one-word labels like HEAD~4), or something in between. You can do this with git rev-list --merges --oneline --first-parent --second-parent . Find out what was modified on each branch since their respective merge bases. You can do this with git diff | less -i or git diff | less -i, and then read the diff. There is a good chance that if these were your branch labels (say, master and origin/master, but you have renamed them), the two diffs will be short. Pick the set of modifications that you like from the first set and put them back in. You can do this with git revert -m 1 , for instance. There are more details in the git docs, especially the Writing Merges section. . United States, 565 F.2d 1375 (9th Cir.1977). In Gee, we rejected the Government's arguments that such an accident report was not admissible as a business record under section 12-21-219, but that it was admissible under Federal Rules of Evidence 803(6) and 803(24). However, after reiterating that the provisions of 12-21-219 are not codified in the Evidence Code, and that we do not presume the Legislature's intent to repeal the provisions of the Evidence Code by enacting 12-21-219, Gee held that the accident report at issue was ad
