What's new in Elden Ring:

At this stage in development, the release date and title were not determined. We will announce the details of the game in the near future.

A rather small number of people know that the developer is from the United States.

Scenarios have been mapped out by Samantha Netta, a skilled script writer, designer, and producer in the US, who has also made a name for herself for her game writing. Ms. Netta said in an interview that the localisation and QoL were approached by a US company, but she and the US company did not want to consider a joint work as an independent developer.

Speaking to Polygon, Samantha Netta said that Atlus USA could not be considered a stranger to the game. In order to make the project work out, the two parties have forged a good relationship, and collaboration was achieved using a strategy of innovation. But she also pointed out that Atlus USA did not enter the project until 1.0. These days, it would be common for a AAA publisher to introduce a game. The two parties worked on the game most of the time during the joint development of the scenario.

According to Samantha Netta, the Atlus US team really like the work the creator, and are very excited for its release. Samantha Netta will be joining the in-house QA team for the game. The project took about two years.

It is an exciting and interesting project.

But maybe you don't want to wait for that release date, because Atlus US is currently hard at work on another title. It was previously announced that they are working on titles like Fortuna and Catherine: Full Body.

And it is not over, they have confirmed that the two will be co-produced. So we will also be getting two titles in one year. And also, Atlus USA is developing a mobile game, and they are working on a large scale game with a Disney IP. So in the future, we will also have a trailer like this.

So we will keep you updated on their future development.

Sharing! A rather small number of people know that the developer is from the United States.

Problem with ADAMs. I'm making a port of an old console game in PC. I get the text for all menu options fine, but when I press any of the buttons, the game freezes. I'm new to some of this, and have tried debugging. The game has VGA compatibility, so the console ports that I've played haven't had any problems. For some reason, it freezes when in the menus or the game itself. I can't for the life of me figure out why... any help? Here's the Code: This at least narrows it down to the CCompiler. I'm pretty sure that the CCompiler is fine, because I ran the game through my other debuggers, and it worked fine. Running via the ported Executable, version 3.00, works fine, but the same executable with 3.20 causes the game to crash if I press any of the buttons. SSCoD Maker iMapy wrote: the amount of information it gives will make it easier to debug. The error given makes it hard to even narrow down the issue. The error it gives is: Operator expected What make and model is this? (We need a small menu for this).... If it runs in debug with 3.20, it won't run in release without changes. This means the development settings change all the way to release on 3.20. However, the release folder is where 3.00 would put the executable. This must be something with the development settings files, although I don't know what specifically. I'll research this. This is a pretty old game I'm making port, so I've got some room to play around to actually get it all working. S I have limited resources, but I'm about to invest some. If you could help me test Beta 16 dfsnotes.exe, I'd really appreciate it. I'm new, I'm not sure what more information I should
