HyperMotion Technology will also be used to enhance the accuracy of player controls and player movement. The AI of real-life players will also be able to adapt to player movement and surroundings, creating an experience that is unique to FIFA. Motion and reaction are among the most important reactions to a play or to a player, and these improvements are a direct result of the new motion capture technology that's being used in the game. "It's an interesting approach, and we've got to make sure that we're doing it right and getting all the gameplay benefits. We've got to do that with a minimum of latency and a maximum of player simulation." The final piece of the puzzle to FIFA gameplay is the ball. After being tested in the simulation, a new technology has been developed and implemented in FIFA 22 that accelerates the ball's movements in all directions. "It's like taking a massive wind turbine and putting it on a football," explains Andy Smalley, Creative Director at EA SPORTS FIFA. "You get this speed boost but everything else is the same and all the physics are the same." New camera angles give fans a closer look at the action on the pitch. The new camera angle can be switched in-game, with the wider view being helpful for more accurate free kicks. The camera also offers a free-flowing feel, allowing players to lead and pass freely, without waiting for the ball. The improvements mean that the action on the pitch will be as close to "the real thing" as possible. Finally, a small detail that will excite and delight football fans; FIFA 22 introduces an all-new Vibration System. The interaction between the player and the ball is a vital aspect in football, with different nuances adding an extra dimension to the game. "Players create such a huge amount of energy on the ball by playing with it," Andy Smalley adds. "It's one of the key elements of the game, because the player is able to control the energy of the ball on his feet, which adds to the unpredictability of the game." "We're enabling the player to create that energy on the ball, so that every time a player makes contact with the ball, you can feel the impact", adds Craig Slater, Senior

FIFA has revolutionised the way players control and interact with the ball. New gameplay innovations like a Pro Player Learning Centre, All-new Player Intelligence and Player Traits now let you take command of individual players' behaviour on the pitch, as well as how they interact with teammates and opponents. Developed from feedback from players in EA Play's FIFA Ultimate Team, Player Traits gives your AI teammates a unique character they are equipped with one of five Personality Traits: Quiet Leader: Quietly leads team-mates on and off the pitch. Talkative: Likes to chat and will tell you all about himself. Playmaker: Knows exactly when to pass the ball and will even make decisions that no one else has thought of. Enthusiastic: Gets everyone hyped about the game and will do anything to win. Mean: Every opponent knows that they can't mess with this guy. He'll mess with you first. Choose from a squad of 24 in-depth and realistic players, including eight new all-star players - starting from this week's FIFA Ultimate Team. All-new Player Intelligence (TPI) brings an AI team-mate who is now much more intelligent when it comes to managing possession, pressing and playing in the final third of the field, as well as how they behave when they receive the ball. Now, on the pitch, your players will make smarter decisions and interact with teammates and opponents in ways that become increasingly unpredictable. A new goal celebration engine lets you deliver memorable and entertaining goals. We've added in a new and more sophisticated set of gestures that bring even more style and personality to your celebrations, as well as a brand-new way for players to express
