As a customer, you'll have to be pretty good at engaging with women and keeping conversations going. Also, when you buy drinks, you're not just buying drinks. The hostesses also give out tips, that you can choose to accept or reject. Rules: The rules are pretty simple. You can buy drinks for women, but you have to flirt first. If you flirt too much with the women, they will walk away. So be careful! Afterwards, you can buy a drink for them. Have a conversation with them, get their hearts, save them and take them out on dates. Each time you take them on a date, they'll give you a feather. Don't forget to use it, as you can gain more money from it. If you get corks, you gain money, if you have it in your wallet, you gain experience. Each girl has her own needs, so you'll have to choose your best move. Each time you save a girl, she gains more affection towards you. The girl's affection is the number of hearts she has for you, the more you have, the more affection she has. She'll also be more talkative and interested in you, the more affection she has. Sometimes, the girls will be drunk. They will be quite talkative and friendly but, be careful. They may be a bit too friendly! Mash those drinks with crazy concoctions and you'll be on your way to becoming a Mixologist! You can also use the Heezy Machine to add or subtract ingredients. What's new in Locked:

Lost Temple Titan Quest: Atlantis Lost Temple is a 1996 real-time strategy game developed by Petroglyph Games and published by Interplay Entertainment for Windows. The game is based on a real-time strategy game of the same name for the Amiga, as a prequel/sequel to that game's sequel, Titan Quest. It was also released for the Dreamcast. The first game in the series was released for the original PlayStation, with the subsequent sequels being on the PlayStation 2, Xbox, PC, PlayStation Portable, and Xbox 360. The series has sold over five million copies. Gameplay Titan Quest: Atlantis Lost Temple is heavily based on the first Titan Quest title, and is the beginning of a long series of games that continue to take place in the same universe. Each game in the series features a different faction within the titular Titan Quest Universe, which is shown as a fanfare at the beginning of each game. Gameplay is similar to the original, only teams can now build continents and at the start of the game on every continent there are yellow zones. Players can place catapults and walkways, just as in the original game. There are six new classes, each with its own single and multiplayer set of weapons. The six classes are: Archer (ranged), Soldier (heavy melee), Sorcerer (magic), Tactician (ranged), Scout (mobility), and Wizard (ranged). Minors can play multiplayer games in a version of the original single-player game played in teams of two. A 10% cut of the player's winnings are given to charity. A sub-class, the Monk class, has been introduced as a support class for the Tactician. As players progress they unlock special rewards for their characters. Also, if a player completes the normal player's version of the game before reaching the end of a level, an additional character class is unlocked. The game features a global chat system where players can interact with each other. Unlike in the original, this game features a Quit option, and players can also skip the cutscenes at times. Story The quest follows the first game's plotline, which was itself a spin-off of the original title, and continues the story of twin brothers Titus and Demetrius Morrow, who received magic just before birth from the Titan that consumed their mother who died alongside their father in a nuclear blast. Titanized by this power, they and their friends sought out the Four

From the early 1960s to the late 1970s, the CNJ G3s Steam Locomotive, constructed between 1956 and 1958, was the most powerful steam locomotive ever constructed in North America. The CNJ G3s shared the motive power with the Baldwin P45DCF under a combined consist that became known as the Blue Comet service. Only 48 Blue Comets were built, all of which were operated by the CNJ. The Blue Comet was the most powerful and economical diesel motive power then known in the U.S. The Blue Comet, in the manner of a cream puff, was a happy camper until the end. In the late 1970s, passenger train operations were terminated, and the locomotive was taken out of service. In 1986, the locomotive was purchased by steam enthusiast John Kielbasa. Since then, the Blue Comet has been restored to its former glory, and now operates regularly on railroads throughout the United States. Blue Comet is the most complete recreation of the CNJ G3s Steam Locomotive ever created. Robust script support allows you to create fully-realized looks and a complete 4-seat steam locomotive. Features: Loaded feature set to deliver an experience never seen before on Trainz. Fully scripted locomotive with fully-functional physics simulation Driver in-cockpit and modeler camera views, as well as a height-mounted observer camera Baggage, Combine and Coach cars Diner Car Interior view including a sleeper berth, a galley and seats in the observation car Multi-objective lighting system, trainscan (normal and reverse), and color-changing lights on the locomotive, passenger cars, and freight cars Fully configurable including locomotive color, passenger cars, and track configuration Scalable camera system that can be undocked, rotated, and animated Built-in passenger camera feature that allows passengers in Blue Comet passenger cars to see what's happening in the locomotive, baggage, and passenger cars in the foreground Automatic 'Blue Comet' passenger consist creation, including following orders issued from the cab Automatic numbering of Blue Comet cars and loco Automatic or manual numbering of Blue Comet carriages Automatic tail light and brake system on Blue Comet, including driving lights on Blue Comet Generates realistic steam and smoke Able to run on SteamMod compatibility, and compatible with the SteamMod Beta Hover camera system to fly over the model

What is Capital Profit

Capital Profit is a tool to mint money. Basically it is an automated Bitcoin miner for the lightning network network. To explain it simplest. It can auto generate unspent outputs you can bet with. You link them to bch addresses and it will auto add them to the client such as bitcoin core. Hooray free money.

The Lightning Network is an exciting invention that makes bitcoin different from the way it operates today. It is aiming to provide fast, cheap and instant transactions. However it is still an experimental protocol, so it has growing pains.

Instead of waiting a while for your bitcoins to be transferred into your lightning transaction output, you can cash them out in a matter of seconds.

If you are one of a handful with a lightning client like bitcoin core, you can use this to generate an extremely large amount of satoshi (which is fraction of a cent).

- For quick reference, with a medium fee (0.05) you could generate over 986000 satoshi,
- With a large fee (0.05) 814712 satoshi, and finally
- A minimum fee (0.08) 719346 satoshi (at the time of writing)

Directly piped in from the bitcoin blockchain we can see the new unspent outputs added to the client:
