You cannot survive alone, there is always a reliance on someone. To the inhabitants of the underground, humans were totally alien. In order to protect themselves, the underground dwellers formed their own social system and established the first city below. Dezatopia was built as a city that the underground race could rely on and live in peace. "Dezatopia", the name bestowed upon the city, was shortened to "Dez", then it was shortened again to "De". It began to be referred to as just "De". In the end, it became just "De". The meaning of "Dez" was forgotten. Thus, it became just "De". It was the name that became lost. These "De" had come to live in the underground. They lived so far underground that they could not even see the sky anymore. How did they all survive in the underground? They ate soil from the soil bank and drank the water from the groundwater. How did they survive? The "De" had confidence in the underground that they lived in. They trusted in Dez. "Dezatopia" is the name for Dez. The underground city became a peaceful community and a thriving society. They became a force for the underground. And, they thrived. How? That is Dez's secret. The existence of this area has been kept secret. An area of pristine nature. What was beneath it? That will also be kept secret, but we feel safe about sharing this. Dezatopia's guardians call it the Algonquin. The sky was something to be respected. Facing the sky and facing the sun are two totally different philosophies. The guardians of this place almost never see the sky. There are very few people like that. The guardians live in an underground city they built for themselves. They live in the vast, empty city. A dark and mysterious place that remains shrouded in mystery. The guardians of this place call it Dez. They call it De. They can't remember its full name anymore. There is no book that tells the story of Dez. Nobody knows Dez's history. Nobody knows about Dez

Six months later, Laura has mysteriously disappeared. The only clue left behind is her phone, which has reached the shore of remote Vancouver Island and has managed to make contact with a local group of scientists. As it is revealed to the player, the phone belongs to Laura and contains all of her contacts, files, photos and locations - including those of David, her boyfriend of two years, whose secrets she was seeking. Since the phone contains all this information, Laura is gone for good. But if the player can find out who David is and what he is hiding, Laura might still be alive. What's new:

The Dark Forester was a winter-flying general aviation aircraft, designed by Messerschmitt into a project that could have succeeded the Messerschmitt M.110 Tigerschläger. While the Tigerschläger was a mostly metal four-seat aircraft whose fuselage was wrapped in and covered by skins of aluminium and fabric, the Forester followed the wind-tunnel tested fuselage lines of a more advanced aircraft. Unfortunately, Ley requested funds for the Forester to be cancelled at the end of 1942, thus the project was terminated and it was no use to the Messerschmitt company. Thus, the Forester was a part of Messerschmitt's unrealised projects. Later, Ley got his request to fund the project from Hitler, but his project no. 7550 "Bomberschlacht" brought only two test-flights and a few test-dummies. By World War II Germany had two decided weaknesses: fighter and bomber aircraft. The latest main German fighter, the Messerschmitt Me 410 crashed too fast and became outdated. The latest German bomber, the Dornier Do 17 was not too powerful in dive-bombing and became to dive-bombing too slow. Messerschmitt added another weakness: its main production line was moving to Iran due to an alleged fear of war, and due to this it ended up with the engine overhaul to the late 1930s, final revisions and design changes and a lack of varietals to cope the coming war. At September 1939 Messerschmitt's high hopes for the Forester in a gravity bomb as a replacement for the existing two designs, the Me 262 and the Henschel Hs 129 were shattered. Development In 1938 the Messerschmitt team started with the initial problems of the Tigerschläger. The fuselage was in an optimum initial stage for the Wingsail design. In order to enlarge the Tiger span and drag, the whole fuselage skin of the Tigerschläger, like about the rest of Messerschmitt aircraft, moved to the Rootes's aircraft company in the United Kingdom. The wings, cowling, spoilers and engines from M.110 were added to the new wing, which was redesigned to be about two-thirds longer. The project became a new version of the Messerschmitt's M.110 family, the Messerschmitt M.110F3
