This is not a workflow question, but an user question. Here is the situation: I want to assign a task "Pickup" to a robot. The robot has not the right to do this. To be short: when creating a workflow with a single step and a list of names, you create a workflow-object, not a (type of) workflow. A: Yes you can do that but it is a bit tricky to do. The way i would suggest to do it: You create a small function and call this using a vba code (or use a caller object). Call the function from the workflow with parameter. Q: When I try to run it, it says "name 'input'" is not defined I want to build a python 3 program that asks the user to
