Check out the pictures below: "ADX stands for Altitude Dome and is an Alternative Hard Rock Climbing Wall for indoor climbers. This hard climb is located in the Shane Burroughs workshop at the Royal Gorge. ADX is a climbable semi-realistic wall of mixed granite, basalt and quartz, that is constructed from old granite outcroppings, sawn up into slabs. The construction is made entirely from hand cut slabs and sunken into concrete blocks. With many routes of all grades from 5.8 to 5.14c the "Altitude Dome" has multiple climbs and bolts for both competition and training. ADX has also been used as the site of several bouldering competitions." How to get here By car From the Interstate: From the south take I-70 north, exiting right at the Watsonville turn off. Follow the signs to the Royal Gorge Visitor Center, which is located on the South End of the park. You can park in the lot or on the streets around the visitor center. The wall is located in the Shane Burroughs Workshop, which is about 300 feet from the visitor center. Our vertical shop Our vertical shop has been serving the climbing community for over 20 years.
