The problem is, after rendering the animation, I am still inexperienced and don't know how to export/render the animation to make the next step. I was thinking of a tutorial, but can't find any.All the best and let me know! in the blender 3d scene, create a cylinder, then with scale rotate the cylinder, then cut the cylinder into two cylinders, clip the ends to make a cube, rotate the cube again. the flat faces of the cylinder, and a texture with the material set for a glass wall and your texture, or make a model, and add a textured plane and place it behind your cylinder. change the angle and you have a window for a box. the three side faces of the window are the three side faces of the cylinder. in blender, change the top and bottom faces of the model to smooth. (very important)Weight-control behavior of adult students with a history of binge eating. Binge eating has been associated with a number of psychological disorders; however, little research has been conducted on binge eating as an eating disorder in young adults who are attending college. This study examined the weight-control behaviors of undergraduate students with a history of binge eating. Results indicated that student binge eaters reported a tendency to control their food intake by avoiding certain foods, manipulating their diet to lose or gain weight, and eating larger amounts of food for emotional reasons. Students with a past history of binge eating from controls in several variables, but no relati
