Let's say there is a paginated AJAX request that returns a JSON object, with each object representing a single page of data. Can it be considered safe to access each page of this JSON object separately (for example, to prep an element for display)? Or is it considered a terrible idea? A: It may be fine, but you should check the current page if you want to do something like this because each page does have its unique data (or it may be the same for all but the last page) There are many ways to do this, but here is a simple example: var lastPage = totalPages - 1; $.ajax({ type: 'GET', dataType: 'json', url: "", cache: true, success: function(data){ if (data.lastPage) // data.lastPage is the last page number } }); // Send the page number $.ajax({ type: 'GET', dataType: 'json', url: "", cache: true, success: function(data){ if (data.lastPage) // data.lastPage is the last page number } }); // Send the page number $.ajax({ type: 'GET', dataType: 'json', url: "", cache: true, success: function(data){ if (data.lastPage) // data.lastPage is the last page number } }); // Send the page number
