Eldervale

- Includes 7 unique "artifacts", 3 of which can be lost at any time.- 14 different scenarios ranging in difficulty, you can even replay them to try to find different ways.- Besides the main campaign there are 2 different "play to unlock" scenarios.- Through a menu you can rewind the game and try to find alternative solutions. Mildly artistic presentation, with the addition of nice tutorials that get you started quickly, otherwise Eldervale is a promising survival horror/adventure/action title. I have played this game so much I want to draw a pic for it. It took so much time for me. But the story is really good, the game is very well made and perfect for horror lovers. I really like the game and that is a high praise for an indie game. Hello everyone, I'm an indie game developer myself and I'm so happy to see more reviews on indie games! They really inspire me a lot.I'll first of all thank you for giving Eldervale a good feedback. You're the first to review the game, but not the only one, so thanks to all the other players, who liked the game! Here is a little info about me: I'm a indie developer and I have worked in this sector for a while. I developed a couple of 2D and 3D games, but now I'm creating my first VR game called "Silence". So, Eldervale is my first attempt in VR development. I hope you enjoy the game. It will be released on October 5th! Thanks again! Developer of Eldervale HorrorBuzzGamer If you're a scary and creepy fan of indie games, Eldervale might be for you! Player ReviewsJust so you know, Eldervale is the best VR game out there right now. No doubt about it. About Us Indie Game Stack

What's new:

Eldervale is a heritage-listed rural homestead at 27 Rusell Road, Elderslie, Maranoa Region, Queensland, Australia. It was built from. It was added to the Queensland Heritage Register on 21 October 1992. History The Eldervale, part of the Duppons property, was cultivated by graziers since the early 1900s and was the earliest market gardening enterprise in south east Queensland prior to World War II. The area of Maranoa and between the Smith and Woodville rivers was first settled by Europeans in the early 1850s, with the Maranoa extending south to the present day township of Dimbulah. Although the area was probably first referred to as "Duppon's Rise" after Edmund Duppon who acquired the area in the late 1840s, the spelling of the name was later changed. In 1850, Duppon was assigned the land to the south of Bundamba on the Dimbulah track while William Smith received land to the north of the track. These runholders maintained the first road to Bundamba, the Smiths/Duppons Road, which was built around 1856 when the Macalister Range was opened, and which was first used in 1857. When a junction was formed at the crossroads, the Bundamba township was established on the north side of the road, with the prominent Eldervale homestead built near the junction in the late 1870s for William and Susannah Duppon. The Eldervale, part of Duppon's land, was situated on the western side of the jct of the Macalister Range extending west to the eastern edge of the Brae Hill escarpment. Here the land of William Macalister was first given to Henry and Jane Smith in 1857. In the 1880s, it was sold to a series of runholders who maintained the local road to Bundamba including James Turner, JW McMaster and Alexander Dadd from 1883. The Eldervale and Duppons were the first market gardening enterprise in south east Queensland. Before the establishment of markets on a large scale in south eastern Queensland, market gardens were established in a number of ways. Some were small, only producing food for the immediate locality, and were established for medicinal purposes. Others might have a wider or regional market for their produce. Those enterprises may have been individual or collaborative ones. Many were worked by women. Aborigines may have also cultivated gardens
