Q: Why does the Expected Value being the sum of the probabilities not hold? Given the following:  $E(X) = \sum p(X=i) \cdot x(i)$  Where  $p$  is a probability, and  $x$  is the function that determines what  $i$  is, which can vary. Can someone explain why this isn't the case? I can't really grasp a big enough picture of either. I tried first by stating  $E(X) = \sum p(X=i) \cdot i$  but that doesn't really help me when I'm dealing with  $p(X=i)$  itself

A: Instead of supposing that  $x(i)=i$ , consider instead  $E(X) = \sum p(X=i) \cdot i$ ; this is a sum of iid random variables. Note that  $E(X) = \sum \Pr(X=i) \cdot i$ ; this is just one of many ways of writing the same thing. // Copyright (c) 2016 The Chromium Embedded Framework Authors. All rights reserved. SMAD4 tumor suppressor gene has been shown to occur in an increasing number of malignancies.
The consequence of this, as well as additional mutations in this gene, is the continued development of a subset of malignant diseases in their pre-malignant stages. We have developed a novel model for the study of the cellular and molecular consequences of SMAD4 mutation. Specifically, we have transformed mouse embryonic fibroblasts (MEFs) from wild-type (WT) and Smad4-deficient (Smad4D) mice with oncogenic H-Ras. These cells form anchorage-independent colonies in soft agar when they are cultured at low density in 3-D. When they are expanded as 2-D monolayers and subsequently returned to 3-D culture, they rapidly form tumor-like spheroids which are reduced in size and number in H-Ras (but not WT) Smad4D cells compared to WT cells. These data suggest that expression of Smad4 is required for the in vitro formation of 3-D structures formed by cells in suspension culture. Ectopic expression of Smad4 restores both the in vitro ability of WT cells to form 3-D structures in soft agar, and the growth of these structures after re-plating. In contrast, ectopic expression of Smad4 in Smad4D cells does not lead to formation of the 3-D structures in soft agar.
We hypothesize that Smad4 is required for the expression of genes which are
