It can be located by entering â€œ inhibitors modulate the proliferation of canine urothelial cells. Alterations of the urothelium may contribute to the pathogenesis of urolithiasis. The objective of this study was to assess the effects of the protease inhibitors ethylenediaminetetraacetic acid (EDTA), heparin, polylysine and PMSF on the proliferation of cultured dog urothelial cells. Cell proliferation was measured by a colorimetric assay using [3H] thymidine. Protease inhibitors inhibited cell proliferation in a dose-dependent manner in the order of effectiveness: EDTA > heparin > polylysine > PMSF. Protease inhibitors may modulate the proliferation of urothelial cells, and contribute to the development of urolithiasis.Q: Possible to have multiple inheritance in java?
