The journal box comprises a housing and a cover, for example, which together enclose the rotor and define the area between the rotor and the frame. The housing normally receives bearing means which define the radial bearing surfaces of the rotor with respect to the housing and the bearing surfaces of the journal box with respect to the frame or stator. The present invention relates more specifically to an arrangement in which the housing of the journal box is received within the rotor and the cover is received within the stator. In this type of arrangement it is desirable that any fluid in the space within the cover be contained when the rotor is rotating. Accordingly, the invention relates to a housing of a journal box, comprising a cover, means for sealing the cover in the area of the rotor and a recess in which the rotor is received, the recess including means to close the recess in the area of the rotor in which the rotor is rotatable. In one embodiment, the sealing means comprises a circumferentially extending groove in the inner periphery of the cover and a sealing element engaged in the groove for sealing the cover in the area of the rotor. The arrangement is such that there is no recess in the cover. In accordance with another embodiment, the recess is located within the rotor and the sealing element is formed of material which is resiliently deformable on the rotor as the rotor is rotated. In accordance with a further embodiment, the sealing element comprises a flexible web having a plurality of recesses therein. The flexible web is attached to the inner face of the rotor and the recesses are spaced circumferentially about the web and located at an axial position about the rotor where the recesses will be within a space in the recess in the journal box. The web may be fixedly secured to the inner face of the rotor and may be

There are two types of credentials which can be used: For "Default" credentials, the client will try to get a local username and password from the user's system. If it's not able to do so, it will display an error message. For "Local" credentials, the client will request the remote server to obtain a local username and password. The default username and password is "{username} {domain}", and will be sent back to the client. You can change these defaults in the following registry key: Root: HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE \Software\Microsoft\Terminal Server Client\ Local Credentials: {username} {domain} Local identity with password: {username} {domain} {password}
