I have an old school Python 1.5.2 installation and this weekend I installed Python 2.7.6 on my new Macbook. So my question is : How do the two Python versions differ and what is the benefit of installing Python 2.7 on my Macbook and not Python 1.5.2? UPDATE : I have been noticing some issues using Python 2.7 on OS X 10.7.3. I have used grep to find what is going on, but as I am new to Python I am no able to understand what's going on. There are two problems : Problem 1 : it appears that Python is using the text code version of Tkinter on Mac OS X 10.7.3, instead of using the binary version. System info : Python 2.7.6 (default, Oct 6 2015, 00:27:06) [GCC 4 6d1f23a050
