When users enter newlines into this field, we're unable to process the form submission (the page is just a blank white space). Is there a way to stop this? A: There are three ways of escaping newlines in HTML. The last one you mentioned is the best one. Space: Carriage Return: \r Tabs: \t You can use one of those to escape the newlines instead of relying on s having it as part of its default HTML. be found in the "Introduction" and in sections III, IV, V, VIII, and IX of that opinion. In Poulos v. State, supra, 659 S.W.2d 379, the court of criminal appeals discussed the Williams, supra, and Payne, supra, decisions and said: We recognize the two opinions were written differently. In Williams, the opinion of the court noted a significant difference in the manner in which the issue of the voluntariness of the waiver of trial by jury was addressed in the respective opinions. The issue was not squarely presented for review because the parties agreed that the court's charge should not contain a special jury issue on the defendant's assertion of his right to a jury trial. The opinion in Williams did not address the issue that had been addressed in *95 Payne. It is thus not surprising that the result in Williams was contrary to the opinion in Payne. It is apparent that the court of criminal appeals has concluded that the Turner standard is the correct standard of review in cases in which an issue is properly presented for review. We also overrule the portion of Payne which overruled Williams in that regard.
