Windows Hyper-V support The following features work only in Windows Server Core VMs: * Headless Windows Server VMs * Virtual WAN links * Virtual application port * Virtual switch and sharing * Windows Server App Integration * Hyper-V Replica Linux This is an initiative by Microsoft to share the kernel and libraries between the Hyper-V kernel and the Linux kernel. The idea is to have one binary Linux version, Hyper-V compatible on all the SKUs that come with Windows Hyper-V, to be able to run a Linux guest in a Windows Hyper-V Environment. Publisher's Description Docker Engine provides a runtime for building, testing and deploying containers as an alternative to virtual machines. Running containers may be the right solution for you if you need more flexibility than is provided by a virtual machine. It is also useful for mobile applications or other workloads that require isolation, portability and manageability. What's New Version 1.12.0.0: - New Storage, Network and Connectivity features. - Workflows for common container tasks are supported now. - Ability to upload a tarball to the repository. - The CLI clients now support deleting and listing repositories. - Unbind a container from a docker host. - Performance Improvements. - Toolchain : Updated Go support for 1.13.x version. - Fixed several issues found by the static analysis. Review The first thing I want to say about v1.12.0 is that I didn't even try this out. I just thought I would try it out and this version seems to be the current stable and released version. On the other hand v1.12.2.0 is a development version and I haven't tried it out yet. I'll follow this thread with the v1.12.2.0 version if needed. Pro : - It's really really fast and responsive. I don't experience any delay or a glitchy container. Just superfast. - Ability to use with python - Ability to create workflows with CLI in docker - Ability to use with docker in python - Generally everything runs smooth Con : 6d1f23a050
