the clinical significance of epigenetic changes including promoter methylation in the development of hepatocellular carcinoma (HCC) in patients with chronic hepatitis C. The study retrospectively reviewed 1225 consecutive patients who underwent hepatectomy for HCC. Haskimycin was administered preoperatively to 122 patients and the clinicopathological features were compared. The post-treatment tumour samples were assessed for Haskimycininduced alteration of the protein expression of interferon regulatory factor 7 (IRF7) and its downstream target genes.

Haskimycin (80 mg/kg) was administered to patients with chronic hepatitis C (21 patients) and the clinicopathological features were compared.

Haskimycin did not affect the tumour size and the cumulative recurrence rate after curative hepatectomy. The Haskimycin group showed a higher frequency of multinodular tumours and intrahepatic metastasis. In addition, patients in the Haskimycin group showed significantly shorter disease-free survival after curative hepatectomy than those in the placebo group (hazard ratio [HR], 2.74; p Q: Mocking HTTP request to net::ERR_UNKNOWN_URL_6d1f23a050
