L-carnitine and L-tetrahydro-L-histidine can be incorporated into the myocardium by the cells of the intramyocardial layer, and can influence the metabolism of the myocardium, but the effect of oral administration of these substances on ischemia has not yet been elucidated. The purpose of this study was to examine the effects of L-carnitine and L-histidine on the histopathological changes in the myocardium after myocardial ischemia in dogs. The dog (male, 10 months old, 18-19 kg) was anesthetized with enflurane in an oxygen/air mixture, and a cannula was inserted into the left carotid artery, and right atrial and left ventricular blood was withdrawn and returned through the cannula, and the myocardium was ischemic for 3, 5 and 7 h. The ischemic region of the left ventricle was locally irrigated with fresh shed blood, during the 15 min of the intervention period, and after the intervention, L-carnitine, L-histidine or their placebo was orally administered for 5 days. Histopathological changes in the myocardium were examined in a blinded manner, and the area of the necrosis and the extent of the myocardial fiber loss were measured, and the relationship between the area of the nec 6d1f23a050
